

THE Story BAR

A TALE FROM DECADES PAST...

Since the opening of Tasmania's first pub – The Hope and Anchor, in 1807 – a few things have remained true to Tassie watering holes. They each serve Boags and/or Cascade beer (depending on the post code); they each provide a welcome setting for trading the news and stories of the day; and importantly, they are inspired by the egalitarian nature of Tasmanian society where class divisions are less obvious. Colourful characters from all walks of life gather in bars at the day's end to share everything from beer and cider to this island's finest wine and spirits.

The Story Bar focuses on what Tasmania does well: hops, apples, botanicals, grain and water. Our natural cool climate allows our beer, cider, whisky and gin are among the best in the world. It also provides us with the creativity to bring these stories to life through our drinks and community. More importantly, the products themselves represent the stories of resilience, curiosity and belief that shape the characters behind the labels.

A TALE THAT BEGAN IN THE LAND

lutruwita, as it was known by the indigenous Tasmanians who occupied this land tens of thousands of years before European settlement, has long been a place of beauty and bounty. These early inhabitants lived off the harvest from land and sea, and today's Tasmanian community is no different.

The majestic scenery of Tasmania's coast's and mountain ranges alike have shaken and stirred many a visitor. Our Forbidden Fruit is a dark Martini, highlighting flavors from Cape Grim, to the Derwent Valley. Using the purist water in the Southern Hemisphere, 666 Vodka provides a spirit with Soul, and Crème de Casis lights the palate aflame. A juxtaposition of light and dark.

Tasmania's scape has changed since English colonization, one such introduction, is the Sloe Berry. Growing on hedges, for an autumn harvest, Sloe Berries have flourished in the Tasmanian climate. And just like the settler's of olde, Tasmanian Sloe Berries are still harvested and steeped in gin to create Sloe Gin, as highlighted in our Wallflower.

Tasmania, "The Apple Isle", promises locals and visitors alike the perfect environment for a vast array of fruits. Due to its iconic apples, it is no surprise that the Huon Valley is the place for some of Tasmania's best cider houses and brandy-makers. The well-travelled fellow will perhaps know the mountain range as The Sleeping Beauty.

A TALE OF SETTLEMENT

The land became the grounds for the stories of its people. From convict to curious explorer, those who came made of it something new.

Painless Pugh tells the story of Doctor William Ross Pugh, the ship doctor aboard the Derwent. Arriving in Hobart, he set off to Launceston to fulfill two desires; to court the love of his life, and to join a medical Practice. Doctor Pugh went on to marry the love of his life, and set up his private practice: St John's Hospital, in 1844. Doctor Pugh was also the first surgeon to use ether on patients, in Australasia.

On the other hand, New Orleans had a heavy influence from the French, where Brandy became a go-to and must-use ingredient for some cocktails such as the Vieux Carré. Tasmania, at the time less impacted by the recent Depression and Prohibition, found itself fruitful in local apple brandies as showcased in our Taffy's Tipple.

Patsy's Fruit and Nuts evokes the resilience of both the land and its early convict community. An Irish 'Cockney', Patsy Maher worked the public works gang, in Hobart, until he earned his ticket-of-leave in 1856. He established himself as a fruiterer, and sold fruit and nuts to the elite at the Theatre Royal.
